A Fair Sample

WE COPY below a portion of an interview had by the Tucson Citizen with Colonel Epes Randolph, one of the most active anti-state men in Arizona, and reproduce it here for the purpose of showing the kind of stuff that is used as "argument" against joint statehood, by even the most prominent anti-state men. We are told that Mr. Randolph is an educated man, a man of wealth, and with facilities at hand for informing himself upon such subjects as the one he talks about below. If this is correct Mr. Randolph puts himself in a very undesirable position before the world by making such statements. Such a misrepresentation of existing conditions in New Mexico, if made by an Arizona man of the wild and woolly class, could be excused on the ground of ignorance, but a man such as Mr. Randolph is said to be cannot be permitted to use that plea, and without it he is left in an attitude before the intelligent public which ought to enable him to entertain a fellow feeling for Ananias. Here is what Mr. Randolph is reported to have said, and as the report is made by a friendly paper we may assume that it is correct.

"I do not believe that the people of New Mexico are fitted to govern an enlightened people, such as inhabit Arizona. An overwhelming proportion of the New Mexican population is densely ignorant. They do not vote individually, as we do here, but in groups. Some men control as many as five thousand votes. In the event of jointure, Arizona would be swamped by the New Mexican majority. Arizona industries would, in all probability, be taxed to death. Arizona institutions would be destroyed or abolished. The university of Arizona would be dismantled almost to a certainty. There would be nothing left to us but to accept the dictum of New Mexico. I have no prejudice against the Mexican people per se. The great majority of New Mexico are not of the same class as the men of Mexican lineage in Arizona, nor of the Mexicans in Sonora. I steadily encourage the investment of capital in Sonora and have invested my own money there. Sonora is progressive and its people, like the Mexican people of Arizona, are intelligent. But the New Mexican natives have not advanced an inch in the scale of civilization for fifty years. They are largely of the peon class, while many of the more influential Americans are of the same breed as the carpet-baggers who infested the states of the south immediately after the civil war."

All that any member of congress needs to do to convince himself of the fallacious, if not malicious, character of the arguments used by the opponents of statehood in Arizona, is to take the statements made above by Mr. Randolph and compare them with the facts as set forth by the last United States census. When the census was taken in 1900, a large majority of the people of New Mexico were Americans—that is, people who have come from other sections of the union—and that majority is considerably greater now than it was then, because the immigration from the states has been greater during the last five years than it ever was before.

The American citizens from the states who now reside and vote in New Mexico, outnumber the entire population of Arizona—Americans, natives, negroes and Pueblo Indians, all put together.

The illiteracy among the whites of Arizona is two per cent greater than among the same class in New Mexico, while among those classed as "colored," the number attending school in New Mexico is seven per cent greater than in Arizona. Hence Mr. Randolph's United States senator who can't write his own name, stands a better chance of getting there from the west side than from the east side of the new state.

Next Mr. Randolph tells us that the Mexican people in New Mexico have not advanced an inch in civilization during the last fifty years, while the Mexicans in Sonora have been making remarkable progress. Hence, according to the reasoning of Mr. Randolph, the American flag is a great big red-white-and-blue wet blanket upon civilization. Is congress prepared to believe that?

Mr. Randolph next tells us that the "university of Arizona would be dismantled, almost to a certainty," by joint statehood, though he doesn't tell us why. But another valiant fighter in the cause of the mining companies, who signs himself "Winfield Scott, ex-chancellor of the university," is less discreet than Mr. Randolph, and lets the cat out of the bag by publicly giving away the fact that the university is supported by diverting to the use of that institution the $10,000 a year of the Morrill fund, which should be devoted solely to the development of agriculture.

Mr. Scott and Mr. Randolph may rest assured that there is no disposition on the part of the people of New Mexico to "dismantle" any of the educational institutions of Arizona, especially as long as the percentage of illiteracy in that district remains as high as it is at present, but the indiscretion of Mr. Scott in telling tales out of school may cause congress to take action in regard to the Morrill money which may possibly result in some trouble to the university.

Mr. Randolph writes like a man of some experience in the art of fooling the people, but in the case of Mr. Scott it would seem to be charitable to remind him of

"What a tangled web we weave,
 When first we practice to deceive."

Wants to Know

A PARTICULAR friend of that distinguished citizen of Pennsylvania, the delegate in congress from New Mexico, is much concerned about the present attitude of the delegates on the statehood question, and wants to know where he is at. All the other gentlemen of the New Mexico contingent have gracefully come down on the proper side of the statehood issue, and promised to be good hereafter if the president will let them alone. That was all reasonable enough and just what the people expected, but while this was going on the delegate was apparently lining up on the other side, and brought in a single statehood bill. But where is he now? He seems to be affiliating with the other fellows, and it is possible that he too has come over, and hence the question propounded by his friend seems to be a proper one, and asks for information which the public would like to have. Is Saul also among the prophets? Has the Bull also promised to be good?

UNCLE HANK WATTESSON is not a candidate for governor of Kentucky. He is satisfied to be Master of the Mint Beds of the Dark and Bloody Ground.—Memphis Commercial-Appeal.

SECRETARY WILSON offers the pleasing assurance that there will be no shortage of limes in this country again, so we will not have to curb our taste for gin rickeys.—Washington Post.

THE people of Albuquerque will have the privilege, twice today, of witnessing the rendition of some of the most famous passages of Shakespeare by the leading Shakespearean artist of the day, Mr. Frederick Ward. This is a treat to literary people such as is rarely enjoyed by a New Mexico audience.

THE EASY ALPHABET.

Is for Growler.
 Which used to be Hushed.
 On the Sabbath, when now all
 Is solemn and Hushed.

"There's nobody here but just me and Mark," says Mr. Murphy, indignantly denying that there is a powerful anti-statehood lobby at Washington. Mr. Murphy's attention is most respectfully called to the highly instructive Biblical anecdotes of one Ananias, now deceased.

The dear, cute old Alimande says that the Albuquerque Faker Journal persists in attacking Delegate W. H. Andrews with "dirty insinuations, cowardly fabrications and untrue charges." Max must be as sensitive on the subject of Mr. Andrews as Little Willard.

An American coach was instructing a class of young Filipinos in Mindinao in the gentle art of football, when he discovered they all had holes hid in their sweaters. This valuable suggestion will not be overlooked by American elevens.

Woman's sphere of activity is daily widening. Governor Hanley of Indiana announces that it was through a woman's aid that he put the lid on the town of Hammond.

It is reported on good authority from Los Angeles that a train got through on the Santa Fe the other day without being wrecked. The story lacks confirmation.

The Evening Squeak has entered upon a new role as the disseminator of holiness and purity. It almost makes one weep with emotion just to read it.

Chicago financiers believe in calling a spade a shovel. As "puts and calls" have been prohibited by law, they are now dealing in "bids and offers."

The Washington Star is overwhelmed with the thought of how much nerve Mr. Longworth must have had when it came time to ask papa.

The proletarian must be leading a strenuous life of it. He actually hasn't had time to even query the Citizen on news.

William Jennings Bryan is in favor of joint statehood. Where William and Teddy are agreed, there must be something in it.

The international fleet will now be withdrawn, immediately after which the ports will undergo another change of heart.

As a great moral uplifting force, the Evening Citizen is second only to the Almanac and the Sunday School Times.

Mr. Fitzsimmons is only another shining example of the great truth that we will be dead ones after a while.

Bourke Cockran, the dark and sinister, may be said to have handed out Mr. Rockefeller a rather caloric one.

Mr. Foraker has announced with some asperity that he is going to have harmony, if he has to fight for it.

The Daily Vesper Ecstasy is likely to be caught up into the seventh heaven without a moment's warning.

The latest definition of a reformer is a man who persists in overlooking financial opportunities.

For a long drawn out crisis the present one in Russia certainly closely approximates the limit.

New Mexico really shines more as a summer resort.

The Record's Fighting Hours.

We are informed that at a recent meeting of the Medical society there was talk of sending a man down to "slap the face off" the Record man. Our regular fighting hours are from 7:30 a. m. to 11:30 a. m. We are too busy to scrap in the afternoon—but so long as the society doesn't send a member too big for us to handle we shall be found willing to increase the practice of the profession, either by providing it with bruises of its own to heal or advertising its goods in the columns of the Record.—Roswell Record.

A Joke—Just a Joke.

Ever since the exhibition of Mr. Andrews in Roswell the Record has regarded him as a joke—and the New Mexican is wasting valuable space in the endeavor to convince us that there is anything serious about the matter except the mistake of electing Mr. Andrews.—Roswell Record.

The Happy Christmas-Tide.

There is every reason why New Mexico citizens should enjoy Christmas day. Peace and good will prevail to a very gratifying extent in the Sunshine territory, except with the Albuquerque joint statehood gang, whose leaders are sore and dissatisfied. But even that is as it should be.—The Almanac.

Harmony.

It was a democrat on the floor of the house who referred to Leader Williams as a shriveled specimen of the monkey tribe. Nothing but party harmony renders the expression parliamentary.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Up to Arizona.

If Arizona wishes to remain a territory, New Mexico is able to go it alone—but statehood New Mexico wants, whether it be joint or single.—Roswell Record.

A Bit Doubtful.

"No," he said, "I'm not sure whether my wife's Christmas present to me was meant to please me or to humble my pride."

"What did she give you?"

"She had a crayon portrait of me made by an amateur artist."—English Illustrated Magazine.

Immaterial.

Barber (with apologetic cough)—Which side shall I part your hair on? Customer (with no hair to speak of)—The middle will do as well as anywhere. It's about six on one side and half a dozen on the other.—Chicago Tribune.
